

Hello,

I would like to inform you that our school allows you to use the ChallengeMe peer review platform ChallengeMe.

ChallengeMe allows students to evaluate and give feedback to each other in order to help them progress.

These assessments may focus on the completion of assignments or on participation in group work.

There are two main types of activity on ChallengeMe:

Cross-peer evaluation: participants are asked to respond to an assignment individually or in groups and then evaluate each other's group, and then evaluate each other's work.

Intra-group peer review: Following group work, participants evaluate their group members (with whom they have collaborated) on behavioural criteria.

The ChallengeMe team will be happy to accompany you in your first challenges. (Integration in your course, setting up your activity...).

The screenshot displays the 'Give my feedback' interface for a 'Final project peer review'. The interface is divided into several sections:

- Final project peer review: A dark header with a person icon.
- Evaluation instruction: A section with five horizontal lines for text input.
- Feedback instruction: A section with four horizontal lines for text input, highlighted with a teal border.
- Evaluation Grid: A section with a PDF icon and the text 'evaluation.pdf'.
- My group: A section showing three user avatars.
- Self Assessment: A teal button.
- Assessment of Agathe Bertrand: A section with a star rating (5 stars) and a 'Your feedback' text area with four horizontal lines for input.
- Submit: A teal button.
- Assessment of David Dupond: A teal button.

At the bottom of the interface, there are three white circles on a grey background, likely representing a carousel or navigation indicator.
